Established in 1977, Foodesign has served the architectural community as a food facility consulting firm for over 45 years. We are a Small Business Enterprise (SBE) transitioning into a Woman-Owned Small Business (WOSB). Our firm has experience in all industry sectors, including Clubs & Restaurants, Colleges & Universities, Corporate, Correctional, Educational, Government & Military, Healthcare, Hotels & Conference Centers, Laundries, Retirement, and Sports & Entertainment. Our license is with the North Carolina Secretary of State ID #0053926-2007 057 01470.

Foodesign has the capabilities that a more extensive agency offers but with a smaller scale, more personable team. You speak directly to the highly experienced leader who is doing the work, not layers of account management, and that design principal will be available from start to finish on every project. We work collaboratively with our design team using Revit, AutoCAD, and other Autodesk-related 3D design software to produce the highest-quality drawing and use matching digital program formats and team-share file platforms. We design to meet LEED standards on every project and specify Energy Star equipment to the fullest capacity.

In addition to our design activities, Foodesign has provided predesign studies and existing facility reports for federal, state, and local projects. Our services have included system-wide evaluations and recommendations for compliance with the latest code and standard requirements on food service systems and equipment. We have participated on advisory committees for selecting food service operators, in educational panels at local college design classes for nutritional program students, as lecturers on design, and conducted state-wide round table discussions at seminars for public facility food service personnel. At Foodesign, our reputation for completing tasks professionally, courteously, and timely is second to none. Our team holds an outstanding record of projects bidding within budget due to our careful cost-estimating procedures. We aim to build relationships with our clients to invest in their success.
